Questions that are also my Agenda

- Why am I talking about this?
- What is feminism and especially feminism in a workspace?
- What does this have to do with Open Recognition?
- How can we combine the two to create more equal workspaces?

I am not really talking about badges as microcredentials or other forms of making skills visible today. I want to talk about badges and open recognition as encouragement for pro social behaviours, as a tool to start a conversation and if possible as a vehicle for system change.

Dyslexic job applicant felt 'worthless' after recruitment process

21 July 2024

Share

Terry Johnston, who was diagnosed with dyslexia in his 40s, said the experience made him feel "worthless"

A man who applied for a role in a Stormont department has been awarded £15,000 in compensation after it was deemed to have discriminated against him during the recruitment process.

Open Recognition

Open Recognition is the awareness and appreciation of talents, skills and aspirations in ways that go beyond credentialing. This includes recognising the rights of individuals, communities, and territories to apply their own labels and definitions. Their frameworks may be emergent and/or implicit.

Feminism & Intersectionality

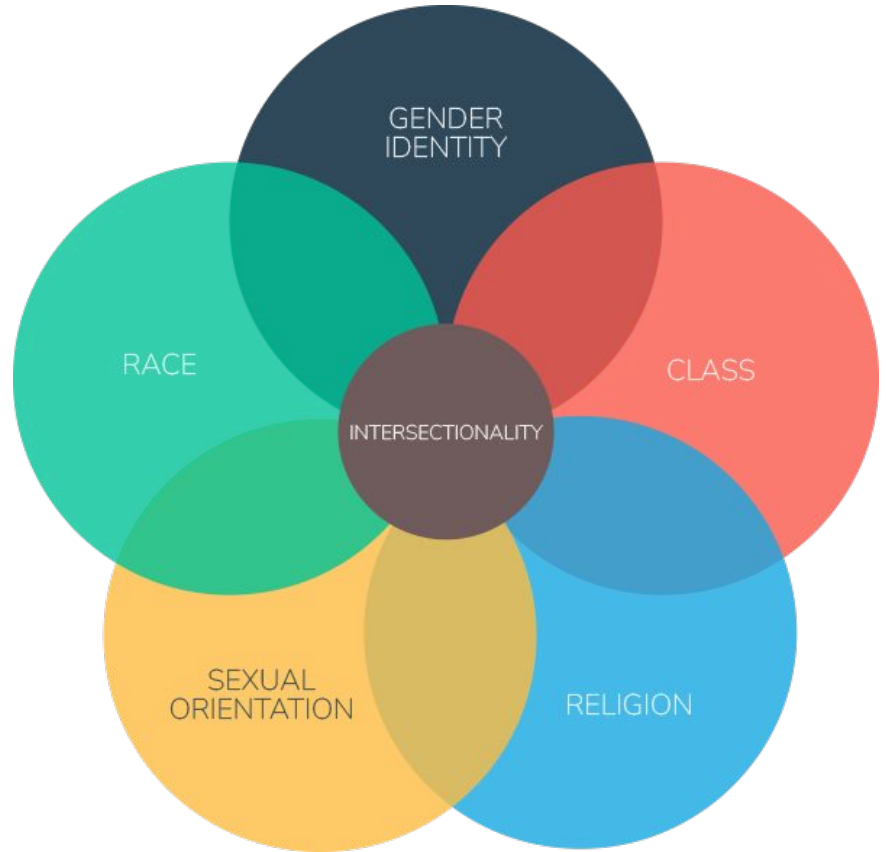

Pussy Riot by Igor Mukhin

“Simply put, feminism is a movement
to end sexism, sexist exploitation,
and oppression.” (bell hooks)

Intersectional Feminism

Intersectional feminism recognizes that a person can experience oppression and discrimination in different ways based on their intersecting identities.

Feminist Workplace Recognition

WΔO

What makes a workspace feminist?

- Equal and appropriate pay
- Diverse leadership
- Work-Life-Balance
- Mentorship and support
- Equal Opportunities
- Safe and Inclusive
Environments

Three easy things you can do for a more feminist workspace

Create a Code of Conduct that applies every time you bring people together (at a conference, in the office, at an off-site,...)

Code of Conduct

- Acts as a guideline for employers and employees.
- It helps guide through situations of discrimination.
- Gives employees assurance that they will be listened to if something happens.
- You can quote something to point out an unjust situation.

Code of Conduct

We expect members and others to adhere to our code of conduct

Code of Conduct

Our Pledge

In the interest of fostering an open and welcoming environment, the members of We Are Open Co-op pledge to make participation in our community a harassment-free experience for everyone, regardless of age, body size, disability, ethnicity, gender identity and expression, level of experience, nationality, personal appearance, race, religion, or sexual identity and orientation.

Examples of behaviour that contribute to creating a positive environment include:

- Using welcoming and inclusive language
- Being respectful of differing viewpoints and experiences
- Gracefully accepting constructive criticism
- Focusing on what is best for the community
- Showing empathy towards other community members

Examples of unacceptable behaviour by participants include:

- The use of sexualized language or imagery and unwelcome sexual attention
- Trolling, insulting/derogatory comments, and personal or political attacks
- Public harassment

Code of Conduct

But keep in mind that by only creating a Code of Conduct you don't magically have an equal workplace and everything is good and well. You also have to act upon it and really live it and have every new member read and understand these “ground rules”.

Three easy things you can do for a more feminist workspace

Create a Code of Conduct that applies every time you bring people together (at a conference, in the office, at an off-site,...)

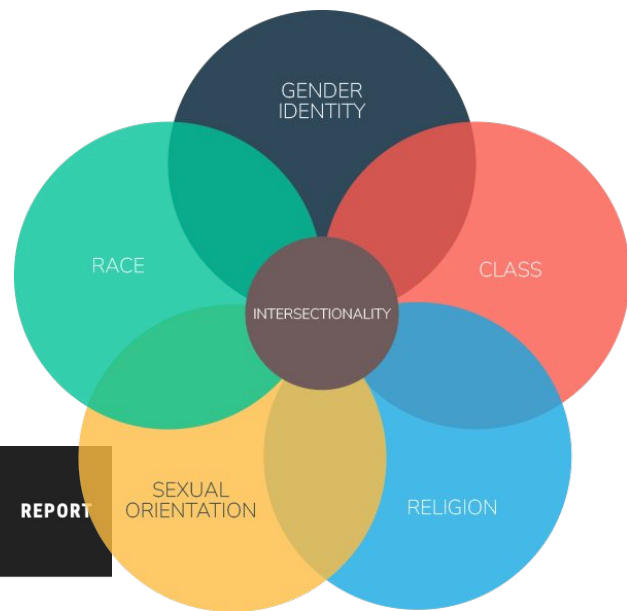

Reflect your own privileges and make room for others if needed (and please don't expect a pat on the shoulder if you do)
