

Speaking and Facilitation: Tips & Tricks

Part 5: General Tips

See the full presentation

General Tips

Promote engagement

Ask questions

Sometimes you've got all of the answers and you're bestowing your wisdom. More often, you're exploring an area, sharing your experience, and asking questions for your colleagues to grapple with along with you.

Question: What are future promising directions of inquiry?

Nothing is irrelevant

Share everything

The things that you find boring and mundane such as how you set something up or the problems you had recruiting someone to do X can be fascinating and gold dust to other people. So mention them! You can go into more detail in the Q&A if asked.

Question: What kind of details could you include that others might find valuable?

JUST TALK ABOUT
THE STUFF
YOU'RE DOING

Sharing is caring

You're presenting to help others

People aren't coming to your session because you're a huge rockstar and they want to bask in your glory. Or maybe they are. Either way, your job is to help them with the things they are facing in their life, thanks to your insights.

Question: If you step into the shoes of your audience, what could you add / remove / modify?

help others to help others to help others to

